JOHN M. HOPKINS, WILLIAM NORRIS.

WILLIAM G. CREAMER.

We now offer to Railroad Companies the cheapest, simplest, and most efficient method of enabling the engineer of a locomotive to apply the entire brakes of a train that has ever been made. We have in our office a full-size model showing the operation of this invention perfectly, to which we ask the asteution of sil persons interested in Railroads. It is needless to describe the advantages of giving the engineer the power to apply the brakes. Suffice it to say there is hardly a railroad socident occurs but the adoption and proper understanding of this invention would totally prevent or mitigate. Its immediate adoption is demanded as well by the interests of the Company as the safety of persons and property conveyed by Railroads.
We offer every facility to Companies desirous of testing for themselves the advantages of this method. For circulars and other information apply at the office of the Jompany.

W. G. CREAMER, General Agent.
